

Listening to Babies

What babies are telling us about birth, bonding and health

Babies speak a special language and are aching to have their stories understood. Come to a very special seminar decoding babies' experiences in the womb, with birth interventions, and bonding with caregivers.

9 am to 4:30 pm

Tuesday, April 24, 2012

The English Inn, 2000 Morton Drive

Charlottesville, Virginia 22903

Fee: $120 ($95 if paid in full pre-registered)

More Info: Kate White, 434-996-2002 katercst@gmail.com

www.belvederearts.com

Cosponsored by Birth Matters Virginia

Birth Matters Members can take the seminar at no cost, see birthmattersva.org for information on how to become a member.

Learn the latest information in prenatal bonding and impact of stress on babies, and how interventions during birth and postpartum can have lifelong implications for human beings.

Learn about prevention and treatment for issues related to pregnancy and birth difficulties for babies, and the basics about pre and perinatal patterns as a form of health practice for a variety of professionals, especially those who work with birth, pediatrics, nursing, bodywork, psychotherapy and education.

Myrna has 35 years experience working with people therapeutically as a nurse, public health nurse, family therapist, Integrative Body/Mind Therapist (IBP) and a craniosacral therapist. She teaches seminars, workshops and trainings internationally and will offer a full professional training in pre and perinatal psychology and health in Charlottesville, VA in April '13. Myrna has been studying and practicing early trauma resolution work with babies, children and adults for the past 25 years. Myrna offers infant/child focused family therapy for pregnant couples and families with children as well as couple and individual work. You can see more about her on her website: <http://www.myrtinmartin.net>.